

Science Communication and Education Network (SCENe) Workshops at CSUN & MRS Fall Meeting

DMR MRSEC Program

In February and October 2018, PCCM presented their Science Communication and Education workshop series at PREM partner California State University Northridge (CSUN) and the MRS Fall meeting in Boston, respectively.

The first one hosted over 25 PREM participants from the California State University Northridge, ranging from undergraduate students to technical staff, over four 4-hour sessions on how people learn, the scientific language, speaking to different audiences and scientific demo development.

The second one hosted over 20 faculty members, graduate students and postdocs attending the MRS Fall Meeting in Boston during 7 hours to discuss about learning curves and approaching different audiences through a set of hands-on activities, discussions and demo presentations.

These workshops have been adapted from the Portal to the Public manual, an organization focused on connecting public audiences with science and scientists, and funded by the National Science Foundation.

Princeton MRSEC 1420541

